The Veterans History Project at the Library of Congress

The United States Congress created the Veterans History Project (VHP) in 2000 as part of the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress.

VHP's mission is to collect, preserve, and make accessible the personal accounts of American war veterans so that future generations may hear directly from veterans and better understand the realities of war.

Participate

Share your story, if you're a veteran. Simply sit down with a friend or loved one and record a conversation about your military experiences for 30 minutes or longer. Interview a veteran in your family or community. Collect a veteran's historical documents. Collaborate with your local high schools and universities, retirement communities, veteran service organizations, churches, area businesses, and other community groups. All you need is the VHP Field Kit, an interviewer, and an interviewee. Once the interview is recorded, keep a copy for yourself and submit the original along with the required forms to VHP.

What Veterans Say About the Veterans History Project

"I am profoundly proud and honored that my story will be permanently archived in the Veterans History Project with the stories of tens of thousands of fellow American veterans who, as a matter of honor and duty, served their country in time of war."

—Warren Tsuneishi, WWII Veteran

"I felt it was my duty to share my personal oral history with the Veterans History Project so that it could be added to the growing research collection at the Library of Congress and made available to current and future generations."

—Wendy Taines, Persian Gulf War Veteran

"I would encourage every veteran to participate in the Veterans History Project. I know personally that I'd never discussed my experiences with my wife and children. They were very surprised when they viewed my video, and it led us to communicate more."

—Jacob Younginer, Vietnam War Veteran

"It's important to get every veteran's story, so future generations can learn about military life from firsthand accounts. Our individual experiences may have been different, but when compiled they form a powerful snapshot of history."

—Teresa Fazio, Operation Iraqi Freedom Veteran

What Happens to Interviews and Other Donated Items?

Donated items are housed in a preservation environment within the permanent collections of the Library of Congress. Within a six-month processing period, all donated materials are available to researchers, scholars, students, Congress, authors, filmmakers, and anyone else visiting the Library.

Search and View Collections Online

The Veterans History Project (VHP) website, www.loc.gov/vets, contains an individual Web page for each veteran who contributes. This page includes service history and other information about each veteran. Click on Search the Veterans Collections to access the database. Currently, about ten percent of VHP's collections are digitized so that anyone with Internet access may view them online. Additional collections will be digitized and made accessible as resources allow.

Visit VHP in Person

The general public may visit the VHP Information Center at the Library of Congress between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. No appointment is necessary.

To view a collection, users must call or email one week prior to a visit and are required to have a Reader Identification Card issued by the Library's Reader Registration Station free of charge. For details, visit www.loc.gov/vets (click on For Researchers).

All VHP collections are served in the American Folklife Center (AFC) Reading Room in the Library's Jefferson Building. To make an appointment to view VHP collections, call 202-707-5510.
